The Adventure Continues

For more than a century, Boy Scouts of America and The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has worked together to instill character, citizenship and fitness in young people. Through the LDS Church, millions of young people have been part of the Scouting adventure. More than 145,000 have earned the rank of Eagle Scout since 2000 alone. For those families, Scouting is more than an activity - it's a legacy.

As of December 31, 2019, the formal partnership with the LDS Church will come to an end, but your Scouting journey can continue!

To continue your Scouting adventure with one of the many Cub Scout packs or Scout troops in your area, call, email or visit us online.

Q: Can my son continue in Scouting?

Yes! There are Cub Scout packs, Scout troops, Venturing crews and Sea Scout ships chartered by community and religious organizations in your area. Call your BSA council office to find a unit near you - or start one of your own!

Q: Can we be involved in both Church and Scouting activities?

Of course! In fact, the Tufts study found that sports and Scouting are a powerful driver of character development in young people. Additionally, the Baylor study "Merit Beyond the Badge" showed that Eagle Scouts had a greater connection to religious community.

Q: Is Family Scouting available to us?

Yes! Scouting has always been a family activity. In fact, Cub Scouting now offers separate dens for girls and boys, and Scouting-age youth will have opportunities in single-gender troops.

Q: Why should I continue?

Since the Scouting values, character and leadership training you have come to know are now available for your entire family, Scouting can continue to prepare your child to do hard things, set goals, earn the Eagle rank, prepare for a mission and serve our nation.

Q: How can I help? Can I still serve?

You can serve as a leader, help with training, organize a new unit. And above all, remind people that the Scouting adventure continues!
